I really liked the song "You can't change a nappy on a wiggly worm." It would be great to sing to babies while you changed them. It's lots of fun.
Amy

"Pop the Dummy" is my favourite. I can really relate to this song as this is where my 11 month old baby is NOW. Ange

"Sun cream doesn't hurt" is a great little song and has quite a different sort of sound. I think it is quite catchy and I can imagine singing it to a group of children while I was getting them ready to go outside. Amanda

Ann Austin wrote her first song at the age of three titled 'The Black Grass of Home' for her grandmother. She has been inflicting performances on friends and relatives ever since. Ann has a few compositions sung in Catholic churches in Sydney. This is her first CD. Ann is married to Mark. Their two fantastic sons, Sam and Will and her gorgeous daughter Alice are the inspiration for (and road testers of!) this music. May it help you sing to, laugh with and teach your children as much as it has Ann and Mark.

You can contact Ann Austin at singtome@ihug.com.au
